I know about F-Gas, I have to get rid of R22 don't I? Is it something I have to pay for?

Who do I speak to? When does it start?

What is it? What do I do?

Never heard of it! Does it affect me?

F-GAS

Confused or concerned about F-Gas or R22? We are here to help.

F-Gas Regulations came into force in July 2007. The main objectives of the regulations are to reduce emissions of fluorinated greenhouse gases used as refrigerants. The phase out of R22 is not an F-Gas requirement but is in the process of happening right now.

Your Legal Responsibilities to comply with F-Gas

If you are an operator of refrigeration, air conditioning or heat pump equipment you are now legally required to maintain records covering the maintenance of equipment and any refrigerants added to or reclaimed from your systems.

How can we help?

Airmaster Air Conditioning Ltd can help by offering competitively priced maintenance contract for equipment including the necessary leak test and record keeping to meet your F-Gas responsibility.

R22 the key question

Have I got to get rid of all my equipment that runs on R22? Of course you haven't, there are many options available, and we can provide practical and sensible advice on tailored solutions to match your business needs and budget with the phase out of R22.
